By the Lord Deputy

OSSORY.

WHEREAS the Parliament ſtands prorogued until the fourth day of July next: And whereas for ſundry cauſes and conſiderations, We have thought it fit and convenient, and neceſſary further to prorogue the ſaid Parliament until the third day of Auguſt next: We do therefore will and require all perſons to whom it doth or ſhall appertain, to take due notice thereof; to the end that in the mean time they may repair to their houſes, or otherwiſe apply themſelves about their private affairs at their pleaſures; and then give their attendance here again, at the day and time aforeſaid, in the uſual place appointed for that intended ſervice, whereof they may not fail.

Given at the Council Chamber in Dublin, the two and twentieth day of June, 1665.
